A man wearing safety glasses and a light-colored work shirt with red and black stripes on the sleeves is working on a large, yellow-painted engine in a workshop. The engine is mounted on a stand and has various pipes and components. In the background, there is a car with its hood open, and the workshop is filled with tools and equipment. The man is looking down at the engine, and his hands are near a component. The overall scene is a busy, well-lit automotive repair shop.
